

CHICAGO WILL BE UNCERTAIN

Impossible To Pick Out The Successful Candidate For Mayor--Desertions Many.

CAMPAIGN HAS BEEN ABUSIVE

Real Issue Regarding Traction Company And Municipal Ownership Lost Sight Of In The Campaign Of Fifth.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Ill., March 30.—The real issues at stake in the local municipal campaign which involve the method of improving the local transportation system have been almost lost sight of in the flood of invective, vituperation, and many libel suits are threatened and actually begun. Threats of criminal prosecution are being hurled back and forth between individual politicians and between newspapers supporting the rival candidates.

Many Meetings.
Meetings are held in the interests of both parties throughout all parts of the city at almost every hour in the afternoon and evening, and all are largely attended by enthusiastic partisans. The actual figures on the possible result are exceedingly difficult to obtain. The city is normally democratic in municipal campaigns, but this year there are strong delegations which have gone from the republican ranks to Mayor Dunne because of their disinclination to vote for Busse.

Vice Versa.
On the other hand, there is a large sized element in democratic ranks which does not approve of much that Dunne has accomplished or failed to accomplish. These will also bolt the party ticket. The actual amount of these desertions it is impossible to estimate.

The Fight.
On February 11 the city council, by a vote of 57 to 12, passed over the veto of Mayor Dunne, the ordinance granting twenty-year franchises to the present street railway companies of Chicago. The ordinance will become valid, if ratified by referendum vote at Tuesday's election, thus settling finally the street car franchise question, which has been a foremost subject in Chicago for ten years.

Twenty Years.
Under the ordinance franchises are to be granted for twenty years to the Chicago City Railway and the Union Traction companies. The companies are to give universal transfers, through routes and a better service for a 5-cent fare. The lines are to be rehabilitated under the direction of the city at a cost of $40,000,000. The city on six months' notice may buy the lines for $50,000,000 plus the cost of rebuilding. While the companies operate the lines they are to pay the city 35 per cent of the net income.

Dunne or Busse.
Mayor Dunne, having easily defeated former Mayor Carter Harrison in the primaries, is standing for re-election on the democratic ticket. His opponent on the republican ticket is Frederick A. Busse, postmaster of Chicago, former state treasurer and a politician of recognized ability. The Hearst element has fallen into line in support of Mayor Dunne, but astute observers do not expect this element to cut so much of a figure in the result as was predicted earlier in the campaign.

The Platform.
The republican platform approves in strongest terms the traction ordinances as passed by the city council. The platform declares that "with growing indignation but patient firmness the people have endured inadequate service and submitted to flagrant disregard of their convenience and comfort by the traction companies," and add that the traction ordinances make at last possible a settlement which will end this condition.

The Opposition.
The democratic platform demands the defeat of the traction ordinances at the polls and immediate condemnation of the street car properties by the city for the purpose of immediate municipal ownership and operation. Pending condemnation proceedings in the courts there are to be no further dealings with the traction companies, except for the purpose of temporary occupancy of the street under revocable licenses. The platform declares that there must be no granting of franchises to "Wall street stock jobbers." The party and candidates are unalterably pledged to municipal ownership and the principle of the referendum.

Both Confident.
Today there are the usual declarations of confidence by the campaign leaders of both sides, although each pleads with its supporters not to make the mistake of undervaluing the strength of its opponents, whose respective iniquities are set forth in language showing the bitterness and intensity of the contest.

night of March 21 and who shot St. Paul Detective John Cowan when he interfered with him. Putzkuhn was one of the men closely examined by the officers, particularly with regard to a question he is alleged to have asked his wife on the morning following the occurrence: "Did you hear about the detective being shot by a man behind a telephone pole?" When asked how he happened to know anything about this detail of the affair, Putzkuhn is alleged to have averred that he read it in the paper. This was deemed curious, inasmuch as the circumstance was first noted in the Gazette on the evening following the occurrence, and the time of the supposed conversation antedated the publication of that issue. The two detectives departed for their homes late this afternoon but will return next week.

ARSON CASES WERE DISMISSED TODAY

Charges Against Four Young Men of Town of Union Were Proven Baseless on Investigation.

In municipal court this morning the criminal action for arson commenced against John Dillree, Thomas Finnan, and Lyle Wells of the town of Union, and Mandy Hess of Edgerton, on complaint of Col. George W. Hall, was dismissed on motion of District Attorney J. L. Fisher. A large 240x50 foot tobacco shed located on Col. Hall's farm, uninsured, and worth in the neighborhood of $3,000 was destroyed by fire on March 11th under circumstances which convinced the owner that the blaze was of incendiary origin. He offered a large reward for information which would lead to the arrest and conviction of the guilty party or parties and it is believed that some individual who bore a grudge against the boys indulged in a little romancing and succeeded in convincing Col. Hall that the story he told was a true one. Certain it is that the latter was sincere in the matter. Investigation showed that the supposed suspicious circumstances which pointed to the boys as the guilty parties were not only improbable but also impossible and pure fabrications. The young man named Hess had been in Edgerton since New Year's and had not been away from town during that time. The party who circulated the malicious reports may be compelled to make restitution for the injury he has done.

TAFT'S BROTHER HAS REPLY TO FORAKER

Proprietor of Cincinnati Times-Star Sums up Political Situation in Ohio.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Cincinnati, O., March 30.—In reply to a statement made to the public by Senator Foraker a few days ago, Charles P. Taft, the proprietor of the Cincinnati Times-Star, gave out a statement today in behalf of his brother, Secretary of War Taft, saying in part: "Foraker's statement indicates that he is running for the presidency and for the senatorship. Friends of Secretary Taft are urging him for the presidency and as the senator has included two offices in this primary contest, Secretary Taft's friends accept the proposition and will make it a distinct contest: Taft for the presidency or for the senatorship, or Foraker for the presidency or for the senatorship. This is a direct contest between friends of the administration and Roosevelt and his opponents. We are willing to submit it to the republican voters of Ohio and the sooner it is done, the better."

LORD NEVILL WILL AGAIN STAND TRIAL

Prominent English Nobleman Accused of Stealing Jewelry—His Second Offense.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
London, March 30.—When Lord William Nevill is brought into court next week to stand trial on a charge of stealing jewelry by means of a trick it is not probable that the court room will be filled with the fashionable and titled throng that was present some nine years ago when his lordship was sentenced to five years' penal servitude for fraud.

That was the first, at least, for which he had to stand trial. It has been current gossip since he was released from Wormwood Scrubbs prison that his punishment had not worked any great reformation in his character or habits and for a long time society has been of the opinion that it was only a question of time till he would be in the hands of the law again.

That great interest is taken in Lord Nevill's case is but natural in view of the fact that he is descended from one of the proudest families in England. The name of Nevill is historic. The founder of the house in England was Gilbert de Nevill, one of the companions in arms of William the Conqueror. His descendants, in the senior line, were the famous earls of Westmoreland. Lord William Nevill was married in 1839 to Miss Louisa Maria Carmen de Murieta, the eldest daughter of the Marquis de Santurce, the well-known banker. He was once an aid-de-camp to the viceroy of Ireland and later a lieutenant in the Third battalion of the Royal West Kent regiment. His brothers and his sisters are married into the cream of the Norman and the English aristocracy. The crime for which Lord Nevill served five years in prison was fraud. It was proven at the trial that by means of a trick he secured the indorsement of Lieut. Spender Clay to two promissory notes, upon the strength of which he obtained some $55,000 from "Sam" Lewis, the notorious money-lender, who died not long ago.

THAW COMMISSION IN SECRET SESSION

Are Making Strict Examination of Thaw This Morning Behind Closed Doors.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, March 30.—The Thaw lunacy commission went into an executive session at 10:25 today, with Harry K. Thaw before them. Thaw was under examination for two hours and fifty minutes this morning, when the noon recess was taken. It is announced his ordeal is nearly over. After a half-hour's further questioning it is believed the commission will have concluded their mental tests of the defendant, and there will then be an open session for the examination by Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton. The commission is bending every effort to conclude its work this afternoon.

Thaw Cross-Examined.
The commission this afternoon permitted District Attorney Jerome to cross-examine Thaw while in executive session, and at the conclusion of the cross-examination the doors were opened and Dr. Hamilton was called to the stand, but was not allowed to testify before the commission.

Appeared Perfectly Calm.
Thaw appeared perfectly calm after his long ordeal of questioning by members of the commission and Jerome. Dr. Jackson R. Campbell, the Tombs prison physician, followed Hamilton on the stand before the commission.

TODAY'S SESSIONS TO BE FAR-REACHING IN RESULT

Chairman Of Interstate Commerce Commission Is In Chicago To Discuss The Strike.

Chicago, March 30.—Chairman Knapp, of the interstate commerce commission, and Charles P. of conductors' representatives of the men. Grand Chief Morrissey and Chief Conductor Garretson were positive in their assertions before the meeting commenced that the men would not abate anything in their demands. C. P. Brown, Chairman of the Board of Managers of the Railroads, was equally explicit in his assertions that the railroads could not go further than they already had.

POLITICAL PARTIES WILL HAVE LITTLE INFLUENCE

Municipal Elections To Be Held In Seven States Next Week.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Ill., March 30.—During the coming week the regular spring elections are to be held throughout a large section of the Middle West. Municipal officers are to be chosen in a majority of the cities of Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, and a number of other states.

Tuesday is the day for the balloting in all the states except Michigan, which votes on Monday. In addition to the local elections Michigan is to vote for members of the supreme court, regents of the state university, and a member of the state board of education. Unless precedent is upset, the regular republican candidates for these state offices will have little difficulty in winning out. In the fifth congressional district of Michigan a primary election will be held Monday to nominate a candidate to fill the vacancy resulting from the election of William Alden Smith as United States senator. The man who appears to have the best chance of succeeding to Mr. Smith's seat in congress is Gerrit J. Diekema, a prominent lawyer and politician of Holland. Mr. Diekema has served for a number of years as chairman of the republican state committee. He was also a member of the Spanish Treaty Claims Commission.

In some of the larger cities which hold elections next Tuesday the issues are political, though in nearly every instance local matters are so thoroughly mixed in that it can hardly be called a straight political fight. In the smaller cities everywhere the question is almost universally prohibition and reform. Here and there the contest has some bearing on state and national politics and also on factional interests in both parties. The municipal machinery in some of the larger cities will naturally have great influence in the selection of delegates to the state conventions next year, and in these cities the party leaders are conducting aggressive canvasses in connection with these municipal elections.

WILL HANG FOR MURDER OF WOMAN AND CHILDREN

Felix Powell Will Die At Victoria, Texas, For Killing Of Mrs. Conditt, Her Daughter And Her Three Sons.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Victoria, Texas, March 30.—The final chapter in one of the most noted murder cases in the history of Texas will be written next Tuesday when Felix Powell will be hanged here for the murder of Mrs. A. J. Conditt and her four children.

The crime occurred on the Conditt family place near the town of Edna late in September, 1905. On the morning of the murder Monk Gibson, a negro, reported to A. J. Conditt, at work on a rice farm several miles from his home, that some trouble had ensued at his home. Conditt jumped on a horse and with the negro started back, but still unaware of the horror that was ahead of him. Half way down the road the two were met by officers. Gibson was arrested and Conditt was informed that his wife was dead. The husband and father galloped to the little cottage where his loved ones had been left. There upon the floor before the open door lay his wife, weltering in her own blood. His baby was seated in a crimson pool, crying for the mother who was dead. Stunned by the spectacle, Conditt passed on into his little home. In a rear room lay his only girl, torn by the ravisher and killed by the slash of a keen edged knife. In the rear of the home was found the body of his three-year-old son, where he had been thrown after the murderer had slashed him twice across the throat. Nearby were the mutilated remains of the two older boys. Both had been killed with an iron bar, branded and left dying in the tall grass, to be found after the other details of the tragedy had been completed.

The negro youth, Monk Gibson, was strung up in an effort to extort a confession from him. While being transferred from jail to another for safekeeping he eluded his guards and remained at large several days. Subsequently he was recaptured, tried, convicted and given the death penalty. It was not until some time later that Powell's connection with the crime came to light.

INCORPORATE NEW INTERURBAN LINE

SOUTHERN WISCONSIN LIGHT AND TRACTION COMPANY THE NAME.

MADISON PEOPLE EXCITED

F. W. Montgomery of Madison Traction Company Says He Will Build To Janesville.

Another phase in the interurban proposition between Janesville and Madison came to light this morning with the announcement of the incorporation of the Southern Wisconsin Light and Traction Company at Madison Friday. According to the Madison papers this company is organized and an issue of two million dollars worth of bonds are ready for sale for the purpose of building an interurban line from Madison to Janesville. F. W. Montgomery, president and owner of the Madison Traction company is behind the new deal and it is claimed he proposes to begin work of construction immediately.

Story is Vague. The story is vague in details. The articles of incorporation show that the purpose of the company is to run an interurban between Madison and Janesville through the counties of Dane and Rock. It does not specify its route or anything definite beyond the fact that two millions dollars of bonds are to be issued. The Madison papers could not make Mr. Montgomery give any definite statement except he would not have to ask for a franchise to run his line from the city.

One Million for Road. It is understood, however, that the Madison company, its tracks which are now extended through South Madison, to the county fair grounds and Chautauqua grounds, are to form a part of this two-millions and be rated as worth a million. This leaves the other million dollars' worth of bonds to pay for the line from the end of the present Madison system to Janesville. Just how much backing Mr. Montgomery will be able to command to build his proposed road is not known. He has had to put considerable money into his Madison system and it is possible he may find it hard work to float his other million dollars' worth of bonds.

Delayed Local Traffic. Mr. Montgomery is the gentleman who delayed the local Janesville-Madison interurban deal last fall. He insisted upon conditions that could not be accepted by the Clough company before they could enter Madison over his line. He then applied for an exclusive franchise in the city of Madison and was turned down by the council. His lines are now extended to several of the suburbs and according to Mr. Montgomery's own statement a few weeks ago were a losing venture.

Possible Route. It is possible that Mr. Montgomery may secure capital to build. If he does so it is probable that the line will be extended from the Monona Chautauqua grounds, following the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul lines south through McFarland and Stoughton, thence to Indian Ford and down the river to Janesville. Another possible route would be to strike off from the Chautauqua grounds around the lower end of Second Lake, down the west shore of Lake Kegonsa and then off to Milton and Milton Junction and so into Janesville. As far as known no routes have been surveyed by the Madison company.

Knew of Plan. T. S. Nolan, Mr. Clough's representative in Janesville, stated that he had been advised of Mr. Montgomery's plans by Madison parties, but that he knew nothing definite as yet. He hopes to hear from Clough relative to the local road within a day or two. The option on the city line has been extended to May 1.

or two. The option on the city line has been extended to May 1.

SCIENCE GOT THERE FIRST

LIGHTNING GOT THERE FIRST

The Scientific Way To PROTECT A BUILDING FROM LIGHTNING

The old theory of roding buildings was to draw the lightning to strike the rod and carry the discharge to the ground. They were run through glass insulators mostly, giving them no contact with the building, allowing it to become charged with electricity the same with them on as if they were off. Now, do metals attracting lightning? No. The notion is a mistaken one. Lightning is not flying at random to be attracted by anything, but springs into existence to an incontrovertible natural law. This law lies in the abnormal condition of positive and negative electrical poles and if we do not deal with it intelligently this law will be enforced. Do lightning rods protect a building from being struck by lightning? Yes, if properly constructed and scientifically erected. Copper is one of the best known conductors of electricity and when nailed to the building forming a direct contact to same, the electricity as fast as it comes into the building goes to the rod and is carried out, keeping the building free from electricity, and if you can keep a building from loading with one kind of electricity it will never be damaged by lightning. And that is just what the Copper Cable Lightning Rod Manufactured at Janesville, Wis., is guaranteed to do. Come to their office at 13 N. Franklin St. and they will show you and convince you that what they say is so.

The Oldest Established Firm in Southern Wisconsin

The firm of Mrs. F. A. Bennett & Co. is not a new concern. It was established in 1874 by Mr. Franklin A. Bennett and is probably the oldest business firm in southern Wisconsin. Since the death of Mr. Bennett the business has been carried on very successfully by Mrs. Bennett, and it has grown so fast in the past year that Mr. F. W. Freeborn was appointed manager and salesman. An innovation to the monument business of Janesville, and in fact, this part of the state, has come about through the installation in our shop of what is known as a pneumatic tool plant of the very latest pattern from the Foster & Hosler Co. of Chicago, the largest manufacturers of this class of tools in the country. The apparatus is little short of wonderful in its operation and is on the same principle as the pneumatic drills used for mining and drilling purposes. An air pressure of sixty pounds operates an automatic hammer which, in the hands of an expert granite cutter, will carve letters and trace inscriptions much more quickly and better than can possibly be done by hand. The finest raised letters can be cut, and this work is not possible for hand labor. Mr. Richard Sandaway, an expert monument cutter and an adept in the operation of the pneumatic tool, with eleven years' experience, who learned his trade in Pittsburgh and who has worked in the largest shops in Chicago, has been added to our force and will be in charge of our lettering, finishing, etc.

It is a wonderful sight to watch this machine in operation, and Mr. Sandaway will be pleased to demonstrate its work to visitors at any time and you are especially invited to call. We received this morning a big carload of the beautiful red Wisconsin Mahogany Granite for which we have the exclusive agency. We also handle every leading granite in the United States and our purchases are all made in car lots direct from quarry owners, not from jobbers. Thist fact, and the fact also, that we do business on our own capital, places us in a position to save people money.

Before The Footlights.

Corinne who will be seen here in Geo. M. Cohan's delightful comedy "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway," is a native of New Orleans, where she was born in 1874. She has been constantly before the public since she was five years old. She is only 22 years of age, yet she has been a stage favorite for twenty-seven years. In the role of Mary in Geo. M. Cohan's play she is said to give the most con-struck with this fact, for wherever it has appeared, the culture, the beauty and the wealth of each city has thronged into the theatre until the scene in front of the proscenium was one of dazzling brilliancy. It can be fairly stated that each performance of this remarkable play has been a striking social event. The success of the play is all the more notable because of the splendid audiences that have vincing and delightful performance of her entire career. "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway" will be presented at the Myers Theatre Friday, April 26.

GRACE REALS, TUESDAY EVENING APPEARS AT MYERS THEATRE IN "MRS. TEMPLE'S TELEGRAM"

A Social Event.
There is no place where society shines with so much brilliancy as at the theatre. An evening spent at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York during the Grand Opera season fairly illustrates this truth. The same is true of any first class theatre in any city. Those who have witnessed a performance of Thomas Dixon, Jr.'s play, "The Cushman," must have been

"Mrs. Temple's Telegram," an uproariously funny and mirth-provoking farce, will be presented at the Myers Theatre Tuesday, April 2. It is a farce comedy of the American school by Frank Wyatt and William Morris, and, while it depends on absurd situations for its humor, it seems probable, and in addition, the lines are exceptionally bright. Every minute of the performance brings some new complications in the most natural way out of the original fib out of which the story is woven, and from the time the curtain goes up the audience is kept in convulsions of laughter. While there is nothing subtle about the humor, still there is never a resort to horse play, and the play moves along with an evenness that furnishes not even the most capricious critic with cause for complaint. The characters are splendidly well drawn. While the plot is consistent, there is not one line that can be left out without affecting the play. The same cast which has presented it on all previous successful engagements is far above the average, and the fun of every situation and every line is brought out in a very delightful manner. The play hinges about a little fib told by Jack Temple to his wife, which leads on to another until there is a tissue of falsehoods that is simply a badly tangled skein. Temple takes a ride on a Ferris Wheel which becomes suspended in midair, where he remains all night. On returning home the next morning his wife threatens to leave him unless he gives some good excuse. He tells her the truth but she refuses to believe him, and then he tells her he spent the night with a fictitious friend named John Brown, at a supposedly fictitious address. In the meantime Frank Fuller, Temple's friend, arrives and impersonates Brown, and this leads to innumerable complications, for the real John Brown, living at the address given, shows up, and then comes his wife, and then Temple's efforts to conceal his lies become exasperatingly funny, until he ends by telling the truth.

Harry Conner, who had a long training with Hoyt, has one of the best pieces of character work he has ever had in the part of Wigson, the butler. His lines bubble over with fun, but if there were no lines at all, to the part Conner creates a laugh at every entrance by his imperturbable mannerisms. His butler is entirely different from the average stage butler with the mask-like face, for he is one, who sees the humor of every situation and helps make others see it. Fun seems to exude from every pore of his body and he alone is worth going to see.

The supporting cast is very clever in every sense of the word, and it is doubtful if there has been more evenly balanced company seen in farce comedy in a long time.

Arousing Anger of Nebraskans.
Portland Oregonian: Mr. Harriman has undertaken to punish the state of Nebraska for its railroad legislation by laying off some trains and placing others on slow schedules. He has also prescribed petty rules to annoy purchasers of tickets. All this might be well enough if the railroads were stronger than the people. Since they are not, it would seem to be the part of wisdom not to push exasperation too far. What does Mr. Harriman expect to gain by making the voters of Nebraska hate him and his railroads?

The Story of a Medicine.

Its name—"Golden Medical Discovery"—was suggested by one of its most important and valuable ingredients—Golden Seal root.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. Pierce discovered that he could, by the use of pure, triple-refined glycerine, aided by a certain degree of constantly maintained heat and with the aid of apparatus and appliances designed for that purpose, extract from our most valuable native medicinal roots their curative properties much better than by the use of alcohol, so generally employed. So the now world-famed "Golden Medical Discovery," for the cure of weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, or biliousness and kindred derangements was first made, as it ever since has been, without a particle of alcohol in its make-up.

A glance at the list of its ingredients, printed on every bottle-wrapper, will show that it is made from the most valuable medicinal roots found growing in our American forests. All these ingredients have received the strongest endorsement from the leading medical experts, teachers and writers on Medical Hygiene who recommend them as the best remedy for the diseases for which "Golden Medical Discovery" is advised.

A little book of these endorsements has been compiled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and will be mailed free to any one asking same by postal card, or letter addressed to the Doctor as above. From these endorsements, copied from standard medical books of all the different schools of practice, it will be found that the ingredients composing the "Golden Medical Discovery" are advised for the cure of the above mentioned diseases, but also for the cure of all catarrhal, bronchial and throat affections, accompanied with catarrhal discharges, hoarseness, sore throat, lingering coughs, and all those wasting affections which, if not promptly and properly treated are liable to terminate in consumption. Take Dr. Pierce's Discovery in time and prevent its use until you give it a fair trial and it is not likely to disappoint. Too much must not be expected of it. It will not perform miracles. It will not cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will. It will cure the affections that lead up to consumption, if taken in time.

Indecency of Sherbie's Act.

Milwaukee News: Mr. Becker, of course, is incapable of realizing his obligations to Mayor Dunne or the indecency of his participating in the Chicago campaign. He has seen an opportunity to have his name pasted on the billboards of Chicago in large letters and his picture printed in the newspapers that are devoted to the Mayor in public places masters whatever sense of decency that he may possess. Yet it would have been better for Mr. Becker if he had remained at home.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

It is a luxury to discover a section of the country where the almighty dollar is not the all-absorbing question, and where mining schemes and "get-rich-quick" ventures are practically unknown.

The extreme southern end of the west coast of Florida is this kind of a paradise—a land where people appreciate the fact that time belongs to them; a people whose wants are so limited and ambitions so prescribed that the spirit of envy or covetousness has never been developed.

This tropical land is old in history, yet as much of a wilderness today, in many respects, as when first discovered. Some of the larger keys, indeed, dot the bays, are inhabited by a few fishermen, with an occasional hotel, for the accommodation of winter guests.

The strips of mainland, which run down into the gulf, are covered with pine and palmetto with here and there a little clearing, where some native has planted a few orange trees, and made a home. His nearest neighbor may be a mile away, and he needs a compass when he goes back into the woods a few miles from home.

These are old settlers in an old country, coming largely from Alabama and Georgia, and then a Kentuckian, who is regarded as a northerner. The colored people, in this part of the state, live in the little towns, so that it is practically a white man's country so far as the rural districts are concerned.

The negro is said to be both lazy and irresponsible. His white brother is extremely moderate, to say the least, but his wants are so simple, and his energy so weak, that his accountability is seldom tested.

A weather-beaten sail, hoisted in sight, the other day, and in the course of an hour the old boat, to which it was attached, floated at anchor from the dock. The little cabin was occupied by an old man and his wife, and they were going up the river, twenty miles to buy 500 feet of lumber, which was $3 per 1000 cheaper than in their home town twenty-five miles down the bay.

It would take them a week to make the trip, but they would save $150 and time was no object. As the boat swung out into the stream, and started on its way, an enthusiastic northern lady said, "That's the way I'd like to live." It seemed ideal in some respects. No care, no taxes, and but few wants, in a climate where Nature's great canopy would be a perfect shelter, but for the festive mosquito.

This land is free from peddlers, and book agents, a land which the promoter has not yet discovered and where the life insurance agent is an unknown quantity. There are no neighborhood feuds nor quarrels, and the ambition to confiscate property either by force or law has not become a contagion.

The people lack emotion and are destitute of sentiment. They practice temperance because it is cheap, and are not annoyed by either politics or religion. They take what comes to them as a matter of course, whether it be prosperity or adversity, but they are honest, all the way through.

A gentleman from the Adirondack country, who has spent many winters in Florida, was comparing the morals of these people, to some of his neighbors. He said, "We used to have a preacher in our town who prided himself on his fine sense of honor."

"I was one of his financial members and on intimate terms with him when money was needed. My wife belonged to his church, and frequently entertained him at the house.

"He was called to attend a funeral in a neighboring parish, and came to me to borrow my horse, which, of course, was all right.

"At dinner I said to my wife, 'I've lent the horse to the dominie to drive over to the next town to a funeral.' This pleased her and she said, 'You should have given him a couple of dollars for his dinner and horse feed.' 'It didn't occur to me that was necessary, but my wife slipped over to the parsonage and left two dollars for current expenses, on the trip.

"There was a toll bridge on the way, and when my bill came in at the end of the month an item of 16 cents appeared for the preacher's entertainment by the family. So he was paid $5 for attending the funeral and entertained by the family. So he was $7 ahead and I was out $2 and the toll."

Then he said: "Do you suppose one of these Florida natives would do a thing like that?" Of course, the trick wasn't exactly dishonest, but it was sharp practice.

This preacher was educated in the country where Yankee shrewdness was recognized as one of the cardinal virtues. His boy was sent to the country store with an egg to trade for a darning needle. After the exchange was made he stood around and watched the cider barrel, with a good deal of interest.

The store-keeper finally said: "Bob, do you want some cider? If you do help yourself." After the glass was filled he looked wistfully at the egg basket, and suggested that eggs were good in cider. He got the egg, went home with the needle, and was a drink of cider ahead.

That sort of Yankee shrewdness made the Nutmeg state famous, and was one of the characteristics of New England stock, but it borders on dishonesty, and in the hands of the average American citizen today is simply an abnormal desire to possess without effort other people's possessions.

Much of reform, so freely expounded, is degenerate shrewdness, and much of the legislation, so popular today, is of this same character.

Better the simple life of the Florida coast than the strenuous existence of the present generation.

JUDGE R. D. MARSHALL

In the haste and excitement of casting a ballot on Tuesday next for the local candidates each citizen should not forget that the office of a supreme court justice is to be filled. In Judge R. D. Marshall, who seeks re-election, the state has an able judge, a man who is endorsed by two-thirds of the bar of the state. His qualifications for the office are such that he should receive the hearty endorsement of the voters of Janesville and all of Rock county. This is a matter that should not be slighted nor forgotten when voting Tuesday and particular attention is called to his candidacy. A vote for Marshall on Tuesday means a continuation of the high standards of the present supreme court. He is endorsed by Spooner, La Follette, seven congressmen, one ex-congressman, a majority of the present state officers, and a majority of members of the state legislature. In Janesville the members of the bar are almost unanimous in his behalf.

TIME TO STOP

It is to be hoped that the city attorney will not take any further steps to carry the suit of aldermen against the city for their five dollars a meeting to the supreme court. It has already cost the city $86 to have the case heard in the circuit court and Judge Grimm's decision in favor of the aldermen is so clear and concise that it would seem to be a waste of money to spend another hundred to carry the suit to supreme court upon the mere definition of the words compensation and salary. It would be no plume in his cap and would merely make the city a bigger laughing stock on the question than it now is. The only way the suit can be carried up is upon the refusal of the Mayor to sign the pay roll next Monday night and it is to be hoped that Mayor Hutchinson will not mar his present excellent record as an executive to stoop to such a foolishness. Enough has been said on this question now. Drop it.

CHARLES HEMINGWAY

The election of Charles Hemingway as superintendent of county schools is imperative. He has ably demonstrated that he is capable of handling the office, is endorsed by the majority of the teachers of the rural schools and his re-election means a continuation of the present excellent policy of education throughout the county. His opposition is almost entirely confined to members of the county board, who objected to his criticism of handling of school funds and care of the rural schools. Because he told the truth about these facts he is to be slaughtered. It is too bad that the city of Janesville can not vote in this matter, as it would assure Mr. Hemingway's election.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES.

There are only three republican candidates who have any contests on in the city. Mr. Snyder, who seeks election as alderman in the second ward is an able man who deserves election and support of the voters. He would make an excellent alderman watchful of the interests of the city of the ward he represents. In the fourth ward Mr. Croft is deserving of special attention. A trained man in city affairs he would make a valuable addition to the council. He would be invaluable as a member of the street committee and would give the city his experience of years in making Janesville streets worthy of recognition as streets. Arthur Badger is the third candidate. The opportunity to him was not taken seriously enough to cause any particular comment as his work as city clerk has been such that his re-election is a foregone conclusion. He would be invaluable to the new mayor and aldermen and his defeat would be a calamity. These three men are the only republicans having any opposition and all should be elected.

Hence, He Doesn't Expect It?—Pond du Lac Bulletin: Gov. Davidson would not leave Madison for a week at this time of the year if he thought he was in danger of being struck by senatorial lightning.

Mere Suggestion.

Elkhorn Independent: Anyway, we hope the Sentinel's prize Wisconsin beauty will not turn out to be a mere creature of anti-fat, hair-cream, and Smoothie's face enamel, like that upholstered Chicago girl.

Guessing.

La Crosse Chronicle: The president's friends who know his real anxiety for fast work on the Panama canal are still wondering how he could have loaded the enterprise with an indolent office-broker like Joe Blackburn.

The Old Admiral Knew.

El Paso Herald: Wise old Admiral Dewey once remarked that the Filipinos were as capable of self-government as the Cubans, and though the statement was misunderstood at the moment, time has brought his vindication.

Posthumous Recognition.

Green Bay Gazette: It really seems that the quickest and surest way to fame is by dying. Thomas Bailey Aldrich, having passed into the beyond, is having his poems quoted and recited country wide with prospects rosy for their coming into their own at an early date.

Magnanimous.

La Crosse Tribune: The resentment that nearly every newspaper in the state is showing against every senatorial candidate that dares aspire to the honor to which ITS senatorial candidate aspires, is neither logical nor fair. The fact is that Mr. Stephenson has as much right to stand for the election, and be defeated, as has Mr. Esch, to stand for the election, and be elected. Nothing like generosity and good cheer in these little shakings of the political plum tree.

Want ads bring results.

SOME REASONS

To the Voters of the First Supt. District of Rock County:

The voters, in regard to the candidates for county superintendents, have this question to decide: "Do you want time or ability?" Mr. Hemingway's administration has been characterized by ability, earnestness, courage, proficiency and progress. His enemies have admitted this, and have been unable to point out a single neglect of duty. If he is re-elected the voters may expect a progressive administration and a faithful performance of every duty. Mr. Green offers to put in his time. What will he do toward bettering the schoolhouses? Put in his time? Will he attempt to raise the standard of teachers and pupils? He answers, "I'll put in my time." In a word, his platform is, "I'll put in my time," but I'll not do anything, because my backers are those who are opposed to progress, not in favor of it.

Mr. Green's argument is that the more time a man puts in doing a thing, the more efficient he is. In other words, that the longer a man takes to build a house, the better carpenter he is; the longer he takes to pull a tooth, the better dentist he is; the longer he takes to amputate a limb, the better surgeon he is; the longer he takes to deliver a sermon, the better preacher he is. Some people can do more in a minute—where special aptitude is concerned—than others can do in a lifetime, and do it just as well—year even better. Ability and proficiency do not depend upon the time put in.

What is Mr. Green's professional reputation? A principal of a five-room graded school who has dropped to a three-room school; not a teacher who has taught under him is supporting or recommending him for the place.

Not six teachers out of the one hundred and eighteen in the county consider him the man for the place, because of his professional reputation. Not fifty per cent of the people, where he is now teaching, are in favor of him. Not twenty-five per cent of the school board members are for him, and those who are, and those in the districts where Mr. Hemingway has forced them to better conditions. Whom do the voters prefer? Here is an opportunity for every friend of better schools, every progressive school board member, every person who believes in a man who dares to do his duty, to say to the foes of progress and of better buildings: "We propose to stand back of the man who has demanded of you a square deal for the boys and girls of the county. To do it, vote for Mr. Hemingway!"

JOHN EHRLINGER KILLED BY TRAIN

STRUCK BY WAY-FREIGHT AT HANOVER WHILE GETTING OFF.

WAS WELL KNOWN IN CITY

Injured Man Was Hurried to Footville Where He Died—Evidently Fell Under Cars.

John F. Ehrlinger, a former resident of this city where he was well known and until recently a farmer near Hanover, fell under a North-Western way-freight at Hanover last night and died at Footville at forty-three this morning, where he had been hurried for medical treatment. His remains were taken back to Hanover this afternoon to the home of his sister, Mrs. Thomas Hemmingsway.

Details Lacking

No one seems to fully know how Mr. Ehrlinger met his death. He was in Footville on Friday afternoon and evidently returned to Hanover on way-freight No. 34, which does not carry passengers. It is thought that in jumping off his head was struck by a step. The only injury shown was the wound on the head.

Hurried to Footville

After the train had pulled into the station the agent, W. E. Walters, saw him lying beside the track. He was first thought to be dead, but upon signs of life being discovered he was hurried to Footville with the engine and caboose of the train and died there this morning at forty-three.

Born in Chicago

Mr. Ehrlinger was born in Chicago fifty-four years ago and came to Janesville shortly after the war. He moved out to Hanover some seven years ago and had an extensive farm until recently. He leaves to mourn his loss: a daughter, Kathryn; a son, William; two sisters—Mrs. Thomas Hemmingsway of Hanover and Mrs. Adolph Vogel of Silver City, Wis.; four brothers—Henry and George who reside in Chicago, Charles of Goble, Oregon, and Edward of Janesville. The deceased was a member of the Willow Dale Camp No. 2002 of M. W. A.

Funeral Monday

The funeral will be held from the residence of Mrs. Thomas Hemmingsway at Hanover Monday morning at eleven o'clock and the interment will be at Oak Hill cemetery with service in the chapel here at 1:30 in the afternoon.

Don't Know Right From Left.
 "The thing that surprised me most when I began to teach," said the instructor of a class of adults in manual training, "was the number of people who can not tell, instinctively, the right hand from the left. Fully a third of my pupils hesitated a moment before obeying instructions to do this thing, or that thing, with the right hand or the left. The thing that fixes the proper hand in their minds finally is some incident in which that hand has figured. By recalling that story they know which hand to use. One of the brightest women I know declares that the only way she can tell one hand from the other is to remember the time when, as a child, she tried to milk a cow and was sent flying heels over head. She approached the animal from the wrong side, and the picture of the position of her right hand then is so vivid that it enables her to distinguish that member to this day."

RAILROADS AND PEOPLE

ST. GOTTHARD. THE GREAT TUNNEL.

ALBUZAR RAILROAD

MUCH as we enjoy the grandeur of Switzerland, and the ability of the people, it is their character we are forced to admire most. The Swiss are a strong, and healthy race, though in some parts the unfavorable influence of the factory, and still more, that of alcohol, have made themselves felt. They are a God-fearing people; it is a common sight to see a little chapel on the highest mountain summit and a shrine along a forest path. They love their mountains and the freedom these have given them. The most uncultured Swiss peasant often says to the tourist: "Is there anything better than our mountains?" They love their government and never let private enterprise stand in the way of serving their country. All classes are interested in politics and are well informed as to the laws that govern them. Even the professional classes enjoy the time spent at the managements. Men of wealth and culture give much of their leisure to public affairs. It is their chief ambition to hold some large political position, not for the emoluments, as these are nothing, but for the recognition. One of the seven men in this government has been president three times. He was an eminent physician and held many minor offices before he was made a member of the government council.

Another man, proprietor of a large hotel in Lucerne, gave up a successful business to devote himself to politics and writing on public affairs. The Swiss are great believers in education. Nearly all the cantons have their universities, where students from many parts of the world come to study languages, sociology and philosophy.

They give the same opportunities to both sexes. Every large town has its grammar and preparatory schools. Some of these are free; in others they ask a small fee, and for this pittance they are taught three or four languages.

The Swiss are kind to one another. The hotels work co-operatively and the largest establishments, when crowded, give much custom to the smaller hotels.

They are exceedingly kind to their poor. They have many associations to supply people with enjoyments. The towns and cantons both the poor, pay their doctors' bills and rent, if necessary. They have splendid institutions for the aged and infirm. The most marked trait is their love for work. Everybody works in Switzerland; men, women and children alike. If employment is slack, the men go to other countries; if they cannot work at their own trade they do something else until fortune smiles on them. Thousands go to Italy, France, England and America, where they work as hotel employees, hotel-keepers, confectioners and engineers, and after they make a certain fortune they return home.

The peasants are the hardest-working people in the world. The country lends itself poorly to agriculture. The climate and the soil are not adapted to this occupation. But what the Swiss peasant misses in farming he makes up in cattle-herding, cheese-making and allied pursuits. The Canton de Vaud is the paradise of the Swiss peasant; he works hard, but the return from the grapes usually gives him a good living. The forest gives him his lumber for his houses, out-houses and wagons. This way and another he manages to lay something aside for the dowry of his daughter and provisions for his sons.

In the Canton de Valais in the spring the poor peasants come down from the mountain villages, bringing their cattle, children and household belongings, to make their abodes among the vineyards. For the vineyards have to be irrigated by conduits, and these are sometimes carried to dizzy heights. Cattle-breeding and cheese-making are valuable means of subsistence to many of the Swiss peasants. They are supported by their goats, while the cows supply the milk and cheese. In the spring, when a herd is removed to the Alps, the herdsman dresses himself in all his finery. He selects his favorite and handsomest cow, he adorns her with a crown of flowers, and ties his largest bell to her neck. The cow is so proud of herself that she refuses to let any other cow get ahead. Another carries the milking stool, and they all wear clanging bells. Singing, the yodel, he drives the goats and cows up the mountains. Some of these ascents are extremely hazardous. The places are so steep the cattle are lifted with ropes and planks.

A more daring man is the grass mow, who stumbles among rocks and cravasses to gather food for the cows and milch for cheese. Like a chamois, he makes his ascent from hill to crest, cuts the hay, ties it in bundles, and then hurls it down from the summit. He belongs to the same class as the mountaineers who risk their lives scaling jagged rocks and traversing treacherous glaciers with tourists to earn a livelihood.

Others work at flax, which is no light task. The flax is left until the seeds are grown. The pulling then begins; it is laid to dry, and is collected in bundles. The seeds are removed by drawing the flax through iron combs. The women along with the men work at hacking the flax. They not only weave their own clothes but increase the family store by weaving the wool and warp in their own homes and return it to the seller. The greatest pride of a peasant girl is to have a wardrobe of linen she has made herself; and a peasant man is exceedingly proud of his wife's accomplishment. The women in St. Gall teach very small girls to do the handsomest Swiss embroidery, so much admired by tourists from all parts of Europe and America. Five or six is none too young for these children to begin. The older ones work all winter selling their fine work to the wholesalers. In summer time they go to the large cities and are hired to work before the shops to attract strangers. In the eastern cantons many of the peasants work in the silk factories part of the year. They are either employed handling the silk looms or in milking the cows on their small farms. Their leisure is given to wood-carving or watchmaking—the entire family is often engaged with this work.

Their chief recreation is found in the Alpine clubs. Late in the fall and early spring, after the tourists are gone or before they come, large parties start out to ascend the steepest mountains. Their daring often results in death. Several families, or groups of young people, go off together climbing, romping and sending their folk up the mountain heights.

The general outlook of the country is prosperous. The well-to-do bring this about by being successful hotel-keepers and engineers, attracting thousands to their beautiful land. The peasants, though simple-livers, are usually happy, because they are masters of their small farms.

Swiss Railroads. America has always been interested in railroads, and is recognized among all nations as having the greatest lines of railroads and the ablest engineers. But our country has a close rival in the Swiss, who have made the finest railways, the great number of mountain roads and essayed many of the most difficult feats in engineering. The Alps are a blessing to Switzerland, and for many reasons. They have protected the Swiss from invasion, made different peoples heterogeneous and forced scientists and engineers to conquer and chain the most defiant mountains. As a recognized authority on Swiss engineering says: "The never-ending struggle with nature has developed in the Swiss a special instinct for self-preservation, and its outcome—engineering." Nowhere is this so well illustrated, or on so magnificent a scale as in the roads they have built over the mountain passes. Some of these were made, or at least, begun, by the Romans more than two thousand years ago. The remains of their work are seen across the St. Gotthard; they built this road to St. Moritz. Another splendid carriage road was cut across the Bernese Oberland, making the highest mountain passes accessible to the people of Bern and Lucerne. One of the most difficult and daring is the Simplon; it goes into Italy and was the only mode of access before the building of the tunnel. The tunnel was not begun until 1858, by Benoit, Rindani & Co. It is on the left bank of the Rhone, and is the largest in the world. It is twelve and one-half miles long, while the St. Gotthard is only nine and one-quarter. It consists of two parallel tunnels, and cost 63,000,000 francs, or $13,800,000. Much of the tunnel is built at a great height.

A different sort of engineering is seen at Meltingen, along the gorge of the Aar, where galleries have been made through the solid rock, and carried on iron stanchions across the length of the Schlucht.

Nothing is too difficult for the people to essay. Now it is the bridge with a light arch that spans a great chasm; there is a tunnel that pierces the bowels of the earth, and a narrow tressel leaps a daring height. Ingenious as these constructions are, they are built with great care and solidity. If the roadway is threatened with avalanches, it is protected by a solid wall. If the path is narrow and built up a mountain side, a wall is carried along, and sometimes for miles. Where the ascent is exceedingly steep, the road is not built straight, but is carried zig-zag up the mountain heights. A handsome carriage road is built along the Vierwaldstettersee, from Kurnacht to Thun, at a dizzy height, giving a magnificent view of the lake and the mountains beyond. The roadway at one place is carried through the mountains. The blasting was done with gunpowder in such a way as to make an open gallery, supported by the natural arches of the rock. This celebrated cliff road was for many years considered a masterpiece in Swiss engineering, but it has now been overshadowed by many of the audacious mountain railways.

There was a time when even the brave Swiss people would not ascend the Rigi; they feared nature's bold sentinels and imagined that evil spirits lived on the summits. The first to ascend the Rigi were scientists, and they climbed those heights in search of curious plants. There are two railways up the Rigi now. The Arth-Rigi line starts at Arth, on the Lake of Zug, and, passing through the Golden, ascends through this gap, as does also the Vitznau line. The Rigi was the first mountain railway built, and was opened in 1871. It comes from Vitznau, over rocky ridges and green slopes. Both lines meet at Rigi Staffel, a slight, graceful dip in the northern ridge, between the Rotstock and the Kuhn. At the height of 4,700 feet is the halfway station, known as Rigi Kaltbad. This railway is 1,800 meters long and is carried up a grade of twenty-five per cent. It was begun in 1869 and finished in 1871. It was the work of three able engineers—Zschokke, W. M. Rissengbach and O. Zschokke. But the idea of protecting the train with cog wheels on the sides of the rail is the work of an American—Sylvester March. It is he who built the Mt. Washington railway in 1866, and his work served as a model for the Swiss Engineers. The Rigi holds a unique position—it lies between three lakes. It is not a single mountain, as is generally supposed, but a flattened pyramid, from whose height several peaks appear. The highest is the northern Kuhn, and surmounting this peak, 5,935 feet in height, are a number of snow-covered mountains. The boldest is the Rigi Hochfluh, in the south. The Kuhn is the watch-tower, and offers a magnificent panorama. Across the lake is the Burgstock, with an elevator at an elevation of 4,000 feet above the sea. Near at hand are the broad expanses of rolling meadows on the sides of the mountains. Below are three shimmering lakes, with the faint outlines of several towns nestling along the border of the lake. The eye lifted heavenward from the plains takes in with a broad sweep many snow-capped mountain summits, including the Xungfrau, Mouch and the Elger.

A more difficult piece of engineering is the Pilatus railway. The ascent to the top is 6,933 feet, or 2,230 meters. It is nearly three miles in length, with an average grade of 38 per cent, and makes the ascent in one hour and twenty-five minutes. This is the work of Edward Lockyer and Guyer Freuler. This railway was not opened until 1883. The town council forbade any railroad to be built here for centuries, because it was thought that Pilate lived there.

GRASS MOWER

This railroad begins at Alpnachstad, in a nook of the lovely Bay of Alpnach. The journey to the summit is tedious, though it is well worth the journey. The lake below, among the leafy branches, sparkles like the purest sapphire. Soon the eye catches a glimpse of another and still another lake, until fourteen lakes are seen. Beyond towers peak after peak sealed in perpetual snow. The electric railway from Stansstad to Engelberg, though a less ambitious undertaking, shows great skill in electrical engineering. It was built in the summer of 1898 and is nearly fifteen miles long. At first the railway proceeds easily and without technical difficulties along the level of the River Aar, but it soon enters upon the mountain portion, through the ravine of the Aar, with a gradient of forty-five degrees, to Obermatt. At Obermatt is a dynamo house of the railway, disposing of more than 8,000 horse-power for the railroad and for electric lighting to a number of villages. At Obermatt begins the steep portion of the railway. It is mounted by a gradient of 27 degrees, with motor carriages and cog-rails. The train passes in a gentle curve into the bright Alpine Valley of Engelberg, hemmed in by jagged peaks. Interesting as these mountain railroads are, the St. Gotthard is the greatest Swiss engineering work. It unites Switzerland and Italy and carries the traveler over a difficult mountain pass. The Romans built a road here several thousand years ago, and later this was improved by the Swiss. In summer time travelers went over the pass in coaches; in winter on sleds. But the road was often covered high with snow and very narrow. Every year hundreds were killed by falling avalanches, or were blocked with snow and frozen to death. This railroad was projected by the Swiss in 1851. But the work was not begun until 1871. Three countries—Switzerland, Germany and Italy—contributed subsidies to the amount of 119,000,000 francs for the carrying out of this great commercial enterprise. Italy gave 55,000,000 francs, Germany 30,000,000, and Switzerland 31,000,000. The work was begun by Louis Farce, a Swiss engineer, who died of apoplexy while working in the tunnel. It takes an express fifteen minutes to go through, and a slow train from twenty minutes to one-half hour. There is only one pair of rails, so that trains go only one way, and a bell rings from time to time until the train comes out. There has never been an accident nor a stoppage since the tunnel was built. In the morning the train leaves Lucerne and is in Milan by evening. It goes to Lugano, where it ascends quite a height. Here it passes through arched tunnels high above the lake. Coming out of the tunnels, the blue lake appears anew. Next follows a stretch of plain between Arth and St. Moritz. To the right is the Lake of Lomaz and the island of Schwyz; to the left, the strange peaks of Mythen; after a short curve round the Reji and the lake at the finest point, Brunnen. There is a long ride across the plains with a view of the lake to Lucerne. At Erstfeld, the great heavy mountain locomotive is attached, and the engine begins. The mountain engine tugs and puffs as it mounts to Coschenen. At this height the Erstfeld glacier appears; there leaping, torrents, here foaming waters, and the pleasant fragrance of deep pine forests. Beyond Armsteg, the Gotthard enters a tunnel to escape the avalanches of Bristenstock. At this point the river appears to flow upward; this is because the train winds here, there and everywhere. The two most difficult points are at Batsberg and the Inefelsberg. But a splendid bridge, a wonderful work of railroad engineering, spans that awful gap. It was here that many of the most dreadful accidents occurred in the middle ages. Beyond is the Italian frontier. Ichno has characteristics of its own. Green whirlpools in the shade of nook and wood. On the left, Monte Prothno bars any exit; on the right are sloping hills. The train sweeps once more through tunnels, then, white gorges, valleys and streets appear and disappear, giving way to mountain slopes and mulberry trees. Once more Ichno is heard gurgling, telling the impatient traveler he is approaching Milan with its great cathedral.

Another handsome railway is over the Bernese mountains. At first the path is among lowlands, but soon the mountain engine is attached, and the train mounts higher and higher. Below are the valleys, spotted with pasturing cattle and Swiss chalets. Here the people tend to their cattle during the summer, and do wood-carving in the winter. From Bern to Interlaken the train is carried across valleys, until another steep ascent is made, and a foaming waterfall is heard. Then down a steep ravine, whence the view over the Hare Valley is free and open, to Brunn and Interlaken. A more recent construction is the Engadine railroad, which goes from Thauls to Coire, and then to St. Moritz and Pontresena. It is the work of Mr. Henning, and was completed only three years ago. It was started as a private enterprise, but the company did not have the money to complete it, and so the work was taken up by the government. Until this time the coach road was the only means of access to the Engadine. From Coire to St. Moritz the ascent is steep. The railroad is carried zig-zag up the mountain sides, through several tunnels and across gapping ravines. The two viaducts, the Schmittelobel viaduct on the left, and the great Landwasser bridge, between Alphen and Filisne on the right. The last makes an ascent of twenty degrees, and, with a sharp curve, spans a great gap and enters a tunnel of 217 meters. The one on the left is 140 meters long, and it built at a height of 35 meters. The last of these great mountain-coring enterprises is the Yungfrau railroad, planned by George Zeller. He started the work, but died soon after it was begun. The Bernese railroad goes from Interlaken through the lovely valley of Santerbrunnen and Grindelwald up the Klenke Schudegg. The mountain sides are pink with the Alp roses and other mountain flowers.

THE MONTREX COG-WHEEL RAILWAY

ries the traveler over a difficult mountain pass. The Romans built a road here several thousand years ago, and later this was improved by the Swiss. In summer time travelers went over the pass in coaches; in winter on sleds. But the road was often covered high with snow and very narrow. To Owners of Bad Breath--

Foul Odor of Indigestion, Smoking, Eating or Drinking Stopped at Once With Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges.

TRIAL PACKAGE TO PROVE IT SENT FREE.
Billious breathers, onion eaters, indigestion victims, cabbage consumers, smokers, drinkers, and those with gas on the stomach are in a class all by themselves distinguished by a powerful bad breath.

They all breathe, and as they breathe, the foul odor which makes those standing near them their heads away in disgust. The pitiable part of it is that these victims do not realize what a sickening thing a bad, offensive breath is to others.

Charcoal is a wonderful absorber of gases and odors. It absorbs 100 times its own volume of gas.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges will put a stop to your bad, offensive breath, and to your belchings, whatever the cause or source, because the charcoal quickly absorbs all noxious, unnatural odors and gases.

If you suffer from indigestion and belch gas as a result, Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges will absorb all the gas and make you stop belching.

If on getting up in the morning you have such a bad, bilious breath, that you can almost smell it yourself, Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges will get rid of it for you quickly.

If you have been smoking or chewing, or have been eating onions or other odorous things, Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges will make your breath pure and sweet.

Charcoal is also the best laxative known. You can take a whole boxful and no harm will result. It is a wonderfully easy regulator.

And then, too, it filters your blood—every particle of poison and impurity in your blood is destroyed, and you begin to notice the difference in your face first thing—your clear complexion.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are made from pure willow charcoal, and just a little honey is put in to make them palatable, but not too sweet.

They will work wonders in your stomach, and make you feel fine and fresh. Your blood and breath will be purified. You will feel clean inside.

We want to prove all this to you, so just send for a free sample today.
Then after you get it and use it, you will like them so well that you will go to your druggist and get a box of these Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you a mail a sample package free. Address

William Rockefeller

Mr. William Rockefeller, president of the Standard Oil company, was born at Richmond, Tioga county, N. Y., on May 31, 1841. He married Miss Almira G. Goodsell in 1864, and joined with his brother, Mr. John D. Rockefeller, in the newly sprung up oil business in Cleveland in the same year. Since 1865 Mr. Wm. Rockefeller has had charge of the New York end of the Rockefeller oil interests. When Mr. John D. Rockefeller decided to abandon the active headship of the Standard Oil company Mr. William Rockefeller was elected president. His wealth is estimated as well over $100,000,000, and he is a director in over 50 of the largest corporations, railroads and banks in the United States.

SWITZERLAND.

HER RAILROADS AND PEOPLE.

Higher and steeper ascends the engine to the cold Klondike Schlegel; a good vantage point for the three sister mountains—the Elger, Monch and the Jungfrau—robed in the pure robes of eternal snow.

Another mountain engine goes to the Elger glacier, where the beautiful Jungfrau peaks forth in full glory. Another spanning railroad has been built to the Elsmere. This was considered a serious difficulty, for a tunnel had to be built under a glacier. The question is answered, will tourists be able to endure the cold of those dizzy heights. The cost of this engineering enterprise has been $500,000 francs, or $1,300,000. The Swiss have adorned many of their cities with handsome viaducts. At Bern there is a splendid steel bridge across the Aare. It is the work of Otto Bonie.

The towns of Geneva, Zurich and Lucerne are also adorned with handsome stone bridges.

Herr Roman Abt is one of the greatest Swiss Engineers. He has improved the pin cogwheel of Sylvester March, and accomplished this by making the pins a part of the rail. The wheels are caught three times during a revolution. He did this while building a railroad over the Hare. This work was done in 1855. By 1900 his improved system was used in Europe, Japan, Australia, and carried up Pikes Peak.

These are only a few of the many railroad constructions, but they are enough to show that the Swiss have conquered their dauntless mountains by building tunnels, chaining gaps and ascending the steepest heights with mountain engines.

Doan's Kidney Pills are made for kidneys only.

Are endorsed by Janesville people. Mrs. R. M. Wilson, of 202 Mineral Point Ave., Janesville, Wis., says: "I had been suffering with my back for a number of years. I had constant pain in the joints and I felt so generally weak and run-down that I often felt that I could not keep up. I used liniments and other remedies that did not help me, and finally, seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in our papers, I sent to the People's Drug Co., and got a box and began using them. A few doses were sufficient to rid me of the pain and I continued taking the remedy until entirely cured. My son found the same satisfaction in using them for bladder-trouble as he has been entirely free from it since using Doan's Kidney Pills."

THE PLUM TREE

BY DAVID GRAHAM PHILLIPS

Copyrighted 1908 by BOBBY-MERRILL COMPANY

AUTHOR OF "THE COST OF THE DELIVER" ETC.

"There burst in me such a storm of anger that I dared not speak until I could control and aim the explosion. Partridge saw how, and how serious ly, Roebuck had blundered. He thrust him aside and faced me. "What's the use of beating around the bush?" he said, bluntly. "We've made damn fools of ourselves, senator. We thought we had the whip. We see we haven't. We're mighty sorry. We didn't do a little thinking before Roebuck sent that telegram. We hope you'll let us off as easy as you can, and we promise not to meddle in your business again—and you can bet your life we'll keep our promise."

"I think you will," said I. "I am a man of my word," said he. "And so is Roebuck."

"Oh, I don't mean that," was my answer. "I mean, when the Granby object-lesson in the stupidity of premature ingratitude is complete, you shan't be able to forget it."

They drifted gloomily in the current of their unpleasant thoughts; then each took a turn at wringing my hand. I invited them up to my sitting-room where we smoked and talked amicably for a couple of hours. It would have amused the thousands of employees and dependents over whom these two lorded it arrogantly to have heard with what care they weighed their timid words, how nervous they were lest they should give me fresh provocation. As they were leaving, Roebuck said earnestly: "Isn't there anything I can do for you, Harvey?"

"Why, yes," said I. "Give out a statement next Sunday in Chicago—for the Monday morning papers—in endorsing Cromwell's candidacy. Say you and all your associates are enthusiastic for it because his election would give the large enterprises that have been the object of demagogic attack a sense of security for at least four years more."

He thought I was joking him, being unable to believe me so lacking in judgment as to fall to realize what a profound impression in Cromwell's favor such a statement from the great Roebuck would produce. I wrote and mailed him an interview with myself the following day; he gave it out as I had requested. It got me Burbank delegations in Illinois, South Dakota and Oregon the same week.

CHAPTER XVI.

A Victory for the People.

I arrived at Chicago the day before the convention and, going at once to our state headquarters in the Great Northern, shut myself in with Doc Woodruff. My doorkeeper, the member of the legislature from Fredonia, ventured to interrupt with the announcement that a messenger had come from Senator Goodrich.

"Let him in," said I. As the door-man disappeared Doc glanced at his watch, then said with a smile: "You've been here seven minutes and a half—just time for a look-out downstairs to telephone to the Auditorium and for the messenger to drive from there here. Goodrich is on the anxious seat, all right."

The messenger was Goodrich's handy-man, Judge Dufour. I myself have always frowned on these public exhibitions of the intimacy of judges in practical politics; but Goodrich had many small vanities—he liked his judges to hold his coat and his gloves to carry his satchel. One would say that such petty weaknesses would be the undoing of a man. Fortunately, we are not as weak as our weaknesses but as strong as our strength; and while the universal weaknesses are shared by the strong, their strength is peculiar and rare. After Dufour had introduced himself and we had exchanged commonplaces he said: "Senator, there's a little conference of some of the leaders at headquarters and it isn't complete without you. So, Senator Goodrich has sent me over to escort you."

"Thank you—very courteous of you and of him," said I without hesitation, for I knew what was coming as soon as his name had been brought in, and my course was laid out. "But I can't leave just now. Please ask him if he won't come over—any time within the next four hours." This blandly and without a sign that I was conscious of Dufour's stupefaction—for his vanity made him believe that the god the great Dufour knelt to must be the god of gods.

There is no more important branch of the art of successful dealing with men than the etiquette of who shall call upon whom. Many a man has in his very hour of triumph ruined his cause with a blunder there—by going cent—not a damn cent! A rickety candidate on a rickety platform—that's what they'd say."

"I made no answer."

"May I ask," he presently went on, "has ex-Gov. Burbank seen this—this astonishing document?"

Burbank had written it. I confess when he first showed it to me, it had affected me somewhat as it was now affecting Goodrich. "For a dealer with business men as well as with public sentiment, I appreciated instantly the shock some of the phrases would give the large interests. But Burbank had not talked to me five minutes before I saw he was in the main right, and that his phrases only needed a little 'toning down' so that they wouldn't rasp too harshly on 'conservative' ears. 'Yes, Mr. Burbank has seen it,' said I. He approves it, though, of course, it does not represent his personal views, or his intentions."

"If Mr. Burbank approves this," exclaimed Goodrich, red and tossing the paper on the table, "then my gravest to see some one whom he should have compelled to come to him, or by compelling some one to come to him when he should have made the concession of going. I had two reasons for thus humiliating Goodrich neither of them the reasons he doubtless attributed to me, the desire to feed my vanity. My first reason was his temperament; I knew his having to come to me would make him bow before me in spirit, as he was a tyrant, and tyrants are always cringers. My second reason was that I thought myself near enough to control of the convention to be able to win control by creating the atmosphere of impending success. There is always a lot of fellows who wait to see who is likely to win, so that they may be on the side of the man in the plum tree; often there are enough of these to gain the victory for him who can lure them over at just the right moment.

As soon as Dufour had taken his huge body away I said to Woodruff: "Go out with your men and gather in the office downstairs as many members of the doubtful delegations as you can. Keep them where they'll be bound to see Goodrich come in and go out."

He rushed away, and I waited—working with the leaders of three far-western states. At the end of two hours I won them by the spectacle of the arriving Goodrich. He came in, serene, smiling, giving me the joyous shining eyes and joyously firm hand-clasp of the politician's greeting; not an outward sign that he would like to see me tortured to death by some slow process then and there. Hypocritical preliminaries were not merely unnecessary but even highly ridiculous; yet so great was his anger and confusion that he began with the "prospects of an old-time convention, with old-time enthusiasm, and that generous rivalry which is the sign of party health."

"I hope not, senator," said I, pleasantly. "Here we think the fight is over—and won."

He lifted his eyebrows; but I saw his maxillary muscles twitching. "We don't figure it out just that way at headquarters," he replied coolly. "But, there's no doubt about it, your man has developed strength in the west."

"And south," said I, with deliberate intent to inflame, for I knew how he must feel about those delegates we had bought away from him.

There were teeth enough in his smile—but little else. "I think Burbank and Cromwell will be about even on the first ballot," said he. "May the best man win! We're all working for the good of the party and the country. But—I came, rather, to get your ideas about platform."

I opened a drawer in the table at which I was sitting and took out a paper. "We've embodied our ideas in this," said I, holding the paper toward him. "There's a complete platform, but we only insist on the five paragraphs immediately after the preamble."

He seemed to age as he read. "Impossible!" he finally exclaimed. "Preposterous! It would be difficult enough to get any money for Cromwell on such a platform, well as our conservative men know they can trust him. But for Burbank—you couldn't get a cent—not a damn cent! A rickety candidate on a rickety platform—that's what they'd say."

"I made no answer."

"May I ask," he presently went on, "has ex-Gov. Burbank seen this—this astonishing document?"

Burbank had written it. I confess when he first showed it to me, it had affected me somewhat as it was now affecting Goodrich. "For a dealer with business men as well as with public sentiment, I appreciated instantly the shock some of the phrases would give the large interests. But Burbank had not talked to me five minutes before I saw he was in the main right, and that his phrases only needed a little 'toning down' so that they wouldn't rasp too harshly on 'conservative' ears. 'Yes, Mr. Burbank has seen it,' said I. He approves it, though, of course, it does not represent his personal views, or his intentions."

"If Mr. Burbank approves this," exclaimed Goodrich, red and tossing the paper on the table, "then my gravest to see some one whom he should have compelled to come to him, or by compelling some one to come to him when he should have made the concession of going. I had two reasons for thus humiliating Goodrich neither of them the reasons he doubtless attributed to me, the desire to feed my vanity. My first reason was his temperament; I knew his having to come to me would make him bow before me in spirit, as he was a tyrant, and tyrants are always cringers. My second reason was that I thought myself near enough to control of the convention to be able to win control by creating the atmosphere of impending success. There is always a lot of fellows who wait to see who is likely to win, so that they may be on the side of the man in the plum tree; often there are enough of these to gain the victory for him who can lure them over at just the right moment.

doubts about him are confirmed. He is an utterly unsafe man. He could not carry a single state in the east where there are any large centerings of capital or enterprise—not even our yellow-dog states."

"He can and will carry them all," said I. "They must go for him, because after the opposition have nominated, and have announced their platform, your people will regard him as, at any rate, much the less of two evils. We have decided on that platform because we wish to make it popular because we wish to carry the western states. We can't hold our rank and file out here unless we have a popular platform. The people must have their way before election, senator, if the interests are to continue to have their way after election."

"I'll never consent to that platform," said he, rising.

"Very well," said I, with a mild show of regret, rising also as if I had no wish to prolong the interview.

For all forms of nervous diseases take Dr. Miles' Nerve, whether it be simple nervousness, or those nerve destroying fits and convulsions. It is a tonic for weak nerves—It will restore nervous energy, and give strength to the entire system.

"In 1888 my little daughter was stricken with paralysis of the brain. The doctors advised Dr. Miles' Nerve. I got a bottle and began giving a teaspoonful every two hours. After about ten days she began to crawl, and within two weeks' time she could sit up in bed, and rapidly improved from that time. We have given her about twenty-five bottles of Nerve along with the Nerve and Liver Pills, and to-day she is well and healthy as ever. My wife and I were completely worn out; staying up nights with our little one during her sickness so we began taking the Nerve ourselves, and with the very best results."

ATTEMPT TO RESCUE "BOSS" RUEF FEARED

ALL IDENTIFIED WITH PROSECUTION GO ARMED.

"GUN PLAY" IS EXPECTED

Guards Ordered to Shoot Prisoner First if Liberation Is Tried—Spreckels Willingly Paying for the Probe.

San Francisco, March 30.—Since the capture and arrest of Abraham Ruef at the Trocadero, a month ago, rumors have been rife that an attempt would be made to rescue him by force from Elisor Biggy and his guards, either during a session of court or while Ruef was being taken to or from court from his prison chamber in the St. Francis hotel.

An officer prominent in the bribery graft investigation was asked Friday if it is not true that every person identified with the prosecution is going armed, and was questioned about the significance of this. He said:

"Though I think the matter should not be exploited, it is a fact that every man openly identified with the prosecution of the bribery charges and grafters is going armed, and that some of the more prominent of them are employing body guards. Though it may sound sensational to those not familiar with the local situation, it is fact that for a month we have been keeping a special look-out for an attempted rescue of Ruef, and we shall be happily surprised if these investigations and impending prosecutions end without a gun play.

Started Several Times. "Several times when Ruef has been in Judge Dunne's court on one or other of the preliminaries that precede a trial a sudden movement toward the prisoner of men, some of whom we know to be reckless of personal consequences, has been checked quickly and quietly by the interposition of officers and deputies in the employment of the prosecution.

"We know that should Ruef be rescued—a seemingly impossible feat—it would not be a difficult thing to hide him so securely right here in San Francisco, that to find him again would be practically an impossibility. The prosecution knows this, the elisor knows it, and neither is taking any chances.

Told to Shoot Ruef First. "It is stating a literal fact to say that each of Biggy's seven guards is instructed, in the event of a serious attempt at rescue by force, either in court or elsewhere, to shoot Ruef and turn their attention to his would-be liberators afterward. Ruef has been acquainted with these orders. As he is not the type of a man to consent to any plan of escaping through force, it is only his rough and reckless friends on the outside who would attempt to devise such a coup. Ruef might try to regain his liberty by strategy, but not otherwise.

Spreckels Paying Willingly. Rudolph Spreckels, who by putting the prosecution in the graft investigation with his fortune made the present investigation possible, gave out a statement Friday in which he said: "Contributions from citizens to the fund of $100,000 guaranteed by me before the commencement of the bribery graft investigation are coming in steadily, though slowly. They are in amounts ranging from $20 to $1,000 and more."

"In the event that the ultimate total of subscriptions falls short of the $100,000 guaranteed, will you make the deficit good?" Mr. Spreckels was asked.

He replied: "I certainly will, and if it costs more than $100,000 to complete this prosecution, that will make no difference. Those engaged in its furtherance will never be hampered by lack of funds, no matter what the bill may be.

Hope to Get High Officials. "The work of investigating will not be suspended until every bit of rottenness has been fully exposed. We fully expect to land behind the bars of the penitentiary every giver of bribes and the higher up the offender the more vigorous will be his pursuit.

"We do not, however, expect to send every bribe-taker to prison. Some of the miserable men who sold themselves to the corporations must be granted immunity in return for their testimony, which is worth a great deal more to us as evidence of the guilt of high corporation officials than their own incarceration would be."

TRYING TO END WAR IN CENTRAL AMERICA

WASHINGTON, AND DIPLOMATS EXCHANGE TELEGRAMS.

DETAILS NOT GIVEN OUT

Costa Rica's Recognition of Honduran Provisional Government Not Confirmed—Bonilla Still Active.

Washington, March 30.—Active telegraphic correspondence has been in progress between the Washington officials and the diplomatic representatives in Central America and Mexico for the past 48 hours relative to the Central American imbroglio. But because decisive results have not yet been reached, and the information necessary to make a clear statement of the situation remains to be supplied, no statement revealing the details of the negotiations could be obtained for publication.

Capt. Fullam, commander of the gunboat Marietta, reported by cable from Puerto Cortez that everything was quiet on the north coast of Honduras and that he was sending a long report by mail telling what he had done under his instructions to protect American interests and incidentally to mitigate the severities of warfare as far as he could without violation of the rules of neutrality.

Doubt About Costa Rica.

The news that Costa Rica had recognized the provisional government of Honduras lacked official confirmation up to the close of Friday and was accepted with reserve, owing to the origin of the dispatch, which might naturally subject it to the suspicion of being colored by the desires of one of the belligerents.

At least 60 days will be required for the election of a president by the provisional government in Honduras and the establishment of the new administration on such a basis that it can command the general recognition of the world powers.

Bonilla Not Giving Up.

This delay will necessarily make the conditions in Central America even more uncertain, according to Latin American diplomats, who have advised that President Bonilla has no thought of giving up the fight, but is busily reorganizing his army in the hope of reversing his former defeats.

Fredrick Bell, of Terre Haute, Ind., a mining expert who has lived in Honduras for 20 years, called at the state department Friday and had a long talk with Assistant Secretary Bacon, concerning the situation. Mr. Bell says President Bonilla is a very brave leader and the sort of man who will not give up while there is the slightest hope of victory.

PERMIT GRANTED TO L. L. NUNN.

May Use Bear Lake Waters for Irrigation and Power.

Washington, March 30.—The secretary of the interior Friday granted the application of L. L. Nunn to use the waters of Bear and Mud lakes in Utah for irrigation and power purposes. The matter has been held up for a long time because Mr. Nunn's plans were believed to interfere with the government project for the utilization of the waters in Bear lake in its own land reclamation projects. In the decision reached the government agrees to get out of the way temporarily, but it will retain the right to proceed with its own work if Mr. Nunn should fail to keep his engagements. Bear lake is claimed to be the largest natural reservoir suitable for irrigation purposes in the world.

Married Women

Every woman covets a shapely, pretty figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlish forms after marriage. The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. All of this can be avoided, however, by the use of Mother's Friend before baby comes, as this great liniment always prepares the body for the strain upon it, and preserves the symmetry of her form. Mother's Friend overcomes all the danger of child-birth, and carries the expectant mother safely through this critical period without pain. It is woman's greatest blessing. Thousands gratefully tell of the benefit and relief derived from the use of this wonderful remedy. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Our little book, telling all about this liniment, will be sent free.

Judging the Goods.

Your show windows tell the character of your goods and other interior of your store.

Dark, poorly lighted windows give the impression that there is "nothing doing."

THOMAS CONNOR IS DEAD.

Missouri State Senator and Millionaire Mine Owner of Joplin.

Joplin, Mo., March 30.—State Senator Thomas Connor, the millionaire mine owner of this city, died Friday, aged 52 years, at a sanitarium at San Antonio, Tex., where he had been for several months. The remains will be taken to Tiffin, O., his boyhood home, for burial. Senator Connor was elected as a Democrat from Jasper county at the general election last fall as a member of the Missouri general assembly, but never reported at Jefferson City, being stricken with a nervous collapse, before the legislature convened.

The new Joplin hotel, in course of construction, to be built and equipped at a cost of nearly $1,000,000, is an enterprise which was very dear to the dead senator and which he regarded as his monument in this city.

Unabashed Peterson.

Although blamed for epidemics and sundry other evils, milkmen sometimes have a redeeming sense of humor. At least a story told by Prof. John C. Scott of Northwestern university would indicate it. Professor Scott's milkman also furnishes his family with eggs. One morning this man, whom the professor in telling the story called Peterson, brought half a dozen eggs to the house. When Mrs. Scott had occasion to use them she broke one after another, but each proved to have outlived its usefulness. Mrs. Scott's just indignation arose until by the next morning it had reached a high pitch. Incensed further by the fact that there were no eggs to prepare for her husband's breakfast, she was ready to give vent to her wrath when the offending milkman arrived. "Peterson," she said, unfastening him with a stern glare, "all of the eggs you brought yesterday were rotten." "Yes, ma'am," the philosophical Peterson replied, "but were they satisfactory in other respects?" The professor's wife fled.

Off Came the Hats.

It isn't hard to persuade women to remove their hats "in meeting" when you know how to go about it, says the Kansas City Star. Harry K. Shields, the singer who assists Rev. R. H. Crossfield, the evangelist, in his revival meetings, knows how. This is the way he did it recently at the First Christian church, Eleventh and Locust streets. "We want a good song service this afternoon," he said, "but before beginning I want to ask the women in the audience to join with me in a breathing exercise. You know to sing well you must breathe well. First I'll ask you to raise your hands to the back of your hat, and—remove one hat pin, then the second. Ah, I see you're taking them off. Now let's sing the first verse of No. —" And the women didn't mind it a bit.

Passing of Household Gods.

We have no household gods now. People buy, exchange and sell their things so frequently that one often does not recognize a room this year which one knew intimately last year. —Lady Violet Greville in the Graphic.
